Headline:
Rain clearing slowly from the south tonight, dry elsewhere.

This Evening and Tonight:
Outbreaks of rain and drizzle will affect Lancashire, Merseyside and Cheshire this evening, but should clear slowly southwards after midnight, with most places dry by morning. Drier with clear spells across Cumbria, but with some patchy fog by dawn. Minimum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Wednesday:
Any fog lifting by mid morning leaving a largely dry and bright day with a few sunny spells, and only a small chance of the odd light shower. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Thursday to Saturday:
Patchy fog Thursday morning clearing slowly, and staying dry for most. Changeable and windy on Friday with some outbreaks of rain. Settling down again on Saturday with some sunny spells.
